"Parish registers were introduced on 5th Sept 1538 by Thomas Cromwell, the advisor to King Henry VIII after he took a trip around Europe and realised that other countries did this. Thomas had the key role in establishing the Church of England after the King left the Church of Rome."

Event dates can be ambiguous prior to 1837, as it was the churches that kept a hand written register of christenings, baptism, weddings and deaths. Unfortunately, many have become lost due to fire, unable to decipher the handwriting or illegible with time.

"The civil registration of births, deaths and marriages began in England and Wales on July 1, 1837. Events were reported to a local registrar who then reported details to the superintendent of the registration district."

It is my opinion that event year is sufficient prior to 1850!
